DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(a) the invention was known or used by others in this country, or patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country, before the invention thereof by the applicant for a patent.

1. Claims 1-7, and 10-12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(a) as being anticipated by D'Angelo et al. (U.S. Patent No. 5929615).

Regarding to claim 1, 2, 7, 10, 11, D'Angelo et al. disclose an over-voltage protection circuit for interposing between an input voltage and supply voltage (fig. 2), the over-voltage protection circuit comprising switch circuitry (34) connected to and passing current between an input voltage and a supply voltage; switch control circuitry (54, 56, 49, and 44) for sensing the supply voltage and regulating current flow through the switch circuitry in response thereto, wherein the switch control circuitry comprises a voltage regulator (44) configured as a voltage controlled current source to provide a control signal to control the switching circuit (34), and amplifier (46) for amplifying an input signal.

Regarding to claims 3, 4, 6, D'Angelo et. al. disclose the at least one transistor comprises at least one P-type MOSFET (34) and at least one N-type MOSFET (46), and the at least one transistor comprises a plurality of transistor configured in parallel (45).

Art Unit: 2836

Regarding to claim 5, D'Angelo et al. disclose a plurality of transistor configured in parallel (40, 42, 34).

Regarding to claim 12, D'Angelo et. al. disclose an automobile audio system comprises audio amplifier (49) for amplifying an audio input signal (see col. 6, lines 4-7); an over-voltage protection circuitry (32, see fig. 2) for interposing between a vehicle battery voltage ( $V_{in}$ , see col. 3, lines 65-66) and an amplifier supply voltage ( $V_{out}$ ), the amplifier supply voltage providing power to the amplifier circuitry (49), the over-voltage protection circuit comprising switch circuitry (34) connected to and passing current between vehicle battery voltage and a supply voltage; switch control circuitry (54, 56, 49, 50, 44) for sensing the supply voltage and regulating current flow through the switch circuitry in response thereto wherein the switch control circuitry comprises a voltage regulator (44) configured as a voltage controlled current source for providing a control signal to control the switching circuit (34).

Regarding to claim 5, D'Angelo et al. disclose a plurality of transistor configured in parallel (40, 42, 34).

Response to Arguments

2. Applicant's arguments filed 04/03/2003 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Regarding to claim 1, applicant argued that the control unit (44) in circuit of D'Angelo is not a voltage regulator and configured as a voltage control current source. However, when the transistor (34) is in conductive state, the current from the inductor (36) following through the transistor (34) to the load and stored in the capacitor (48). For a certain period, the output voltage (in term of current) exceeding the threshold value, the control unit (44) deactivates the transistor (34), and blocks the current from the inductor to the load. The output voltage returns to the operating range. Therefore, the control unit (44) is a voltage regulator and function as a voltage control current source. Thus, the applicant's claim 1 does not distinguish over the D'Agelo's reference.

Conclusion

3. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
